BAKER CYNTHIA'S ELECTION CAKES ARE A WINNER WITH VOTERS!

By Chantelle Symester

A TALENTED baker has found herself inundated with orders for her limited edition General Election themed cakes.

Cynthia Akinsanya, 41, from Islington, North London, started her cake business, Delights by Cynthia, in 2006 after making cakes for her family and friends for over 30 years.

She decided to produce the cakes for last week's election as a fun way of engaging people in politics.

The Labour Party cake is a rich chocolate brownie with red frosting, the Liberal Democrats have a carrot cake with white chocolate and orange frosting and it's a blueberry cake with true blue frosting for the Conservatives.

And despite the election now being over orders and customer thank you letters are still pouring in, including one from from TV and radio personality Vanessa Feltz.

Ms Akinsanya said: "Voting in a new government is a big deal and if my cupcakes sweeten the topic and get more people talking about it, so much the better.

"I think the limited edition election cupcake theme has got more people switched onto politics, particularly women. Some people have been using the cupcakes as a taste test. Surprisingly, your favorite cupcake may not necessarily be your political persuasion!"

Following the success of the election themed cakes Ms Akinsanya has other themed treats scheduled, including cakes tied into the upcoming World Cup.

She added: "I've got something planned for the World Cup supporters and wannabe WAGS.
